The purpose of the Brown Bag workshop is to provide an informal and collegial forum for presenting and discussing work in progress by faculty or graduate students. Faculty and graduate students working in the area of macro or international finance are invited to participate.

Students/Faculty can participate by presenting a recent paper on a macro or international finance topic of their choice or/and their own “work in progress.” Presentations may also include literature surveys, discussions of research trends in macroeconomics and international finance, or other economists’ recent papers.

Overly polished presentations are strongly discouraged.

If you are interested in participating, or just listening in, send an e-mail to one of us and we shall include you in our mailing list.
